Library now closed, citizens urged to stay home

Kerrville, Texas (Feb. 13, 2020) – Because of continuing inclement weather, the Butt-Holdsworth Memorial Library is now closed for the day.

The City of Kerrville's Streets Department is working to maintain roads in the area, but the Kerrville Police Department and the Kerr County Sheriff's Office are both advising citizens not to drive if at all possible as road conditions worsen due to the current cold snap. Both Interstate 10 and State Highway 16 are extremely hazardous right now, along with most city and rural streets and roads, and driving conditions are not expected to improve until Wednesday afternoon at the earliest. All roads in our region should be considered hazardous at this time.

The worst of this winter blast is yet to come. Temperatures into Monday will be in the low single digits, with wind chills well below zero, along with more frozen and freezing precipitation. Being stranded in your vehicle in these conditions may easily become a life-threatening situation.

Please continue to monitor local news outlets and the City of Kerrville's Facebook, Instagram and Twitter pages for the latest updates
