Continued caution advised regarding travel

Kerrville, Texas (Feb. 4, 2022) – While hopes are high that weather conditions will improve somewhat this afternoon with the emergence of the sun, the Kerrville Police Department is reporting that streets in town are still slick and glazed due to the sub-freezing temperatures. KPD responded to five auto accidents last night, though none were in town as citizens took weather warnings seriously. KPD and the Kerrville Fire Department, which responded to 33 calls over the past 24 hours, continue to advise citizens to stay off the roads if possible and also use caution when navigating sidewalks, as KFD responded to a fall with broken bones this morning.

Another hard freeze is forecasted tonight, so adverse travel conditions are expected to continue into Saturday as well.

A warming center is open again today until dark at the First United Methodist Church gym located at 321 Thompson Drive. Please bring clothes, food, drink, and medicine during your stay. The Salvation Army opens at 6 p.m. and can accommodate overnight stays for up to 20 people if needed. Three overnight stays were reported last night at the Salvation Army.

The city's Street Department personnel spent last night and this morning de-icing and graveling area roads, and will try to remove excess ice from those roads as the day progresses. The department reported light traffic on city streets through much of this morning.

No water or power issues have been reported locally.

Non-essential city offices will remain closed today but should return to normal hours Monday.

Let's all hope for a sunny weekend, but in the meantime, stay home, stay warm, stay safe and stay tuned to the city's Facebook, Twitter and website pages for additional updates.
