Kerrville Main Street Extends Deadline for Sculpture Submissions

Kerrville, TX (May 1, 2013) - The City of Kerrville's Main Street program is extending the deadline for artist's entries for their next Public Art Project. The project, entitled "Art in Public Places", will be a rotating sculpture exhibit on the sidewalks of Downtown Kerrville. The original deadline for submission was April 30th. A four week extension will now allow entries through end of business Wednesday, May 29, 2013.

Art in Public Places will feature sculptures from Texas artists in up to eight locations along the streets of Downtown Kerrville. The funding for the Public Art Project comes from the events of Kerrville Main Street, including their 2012 Main Street Moonlight Drive golf tournament and 2013 Mardi Gras on Main event.

The projected timeline has sculptures being installed and unveiled in late summer 2013. Selected pieces of art will remain in downtown for 11 months. The goal of the project is to replace the art yearly. Speaking on behalf of the Design Committee, Kerrville Main Street Manager Misty Kothe commented, "The pieces we are looking to add to downtown will help create an awareness of the arts, be educational for both children and adults, and promote tourism in the area. Additionally, we hope this will continue to foster the community involvement in our beautiful historic downtown area."
